

Longman

www.longman.com

Contents

Earliest times

Chapter 1	The foundation stones	3
	The island · Britain's prehistory · The Celts · The Romans · Roman life
Chapter 2	The Saxon invasion	11
	The invaders · Government and society · Christianity: the partnership of Church and state · The Vikings · Who should be king?
Chapter 3	The Celtic kingdoms	18
	Wales · Ireland · Scotland

The early Middle Ages

Chapter 4	Conquest and feudal rule	23
	The Norman Conquest · Feudalism · Kingship: a family business · Magna Carta and the decline of feudalism
Chapter 5	The power of the kings of England	29
	Church and state · The beginnings of Parliament · Dealing with the Celts
Chapter 6	Government and society	34
	The growth of government · Law and justice · Religious beliefs · Ordinary people in country and town · The growth of towns as centres of wealth · Language, literature and culture

The late Middle Ages

Chapter 7	The century of war, plague and disorder	43
	War with Scotland and France · The age of chivalry · The century of plagues · The poor in revolt · Heresy and orthodoxy
Chapter 8	The crisis of kings and nobles	51
	The crisis of kingship · Wales in revolt · The struggle in France · The Wars of the Roses · Scotland
Chapter 9	Government and society	57
	Government and society · The condition of women · Language and culture

The Tudors

Chapter 10	The birth of the nation state	67
	The new monarchy · The Reformation · The Protestant–Catholic struggle
Chapter 11	England and her neighbours	73
	The new foreign policy · The new trading empire · Wales · Ireland · Scotland and England · Mary Queen of Scots and the Scottish Reformation · A Scottish king for England
Chapter 12	Government and society	79
	Tudor parliaments · Rich and poor in town and country · Domestic life · Language and culture

The Stuarts

Chapter 13	Crown and Parliament Parliament against the Crown · Religious disagreement · Civil war	87
Chapter 14	Republican and Restoration Britain Republican Britain · Catholicism, the Crown and the new constitutional monarchy · Scotland and Ireland · Foreign relations	92
Chapter 15	Life and thought The revolution in thought · Life and work in the Stuart age · Family life	98

The eighteenth century

Chapter 16	The political world Politics and finance · Wilkes and liberty · Radicalism and the loss of the American colonies · Ireland · Scotland	107
Chapter 17	Life in town and country Town life · The rich · The countryside · Family life	114
Chapter 18	The years of revolution Industrial revolution · Society and religion · Revolution in France and the Napoleonic Wars	121

The nineteenth century

Chapter 19	The years of power and danger The danger at home, 1815–32 · Reform · Workers revolt · Family life	131
Chapter 20	The years of self-confidence The railway · The rise of the middle classes · The growth of towns and cities · Population and politics · Queen and monarchy · Queen and empire · Wales, Scotland and Ireland	138
Chapter 21	The end of an age Social and economic improvements · The importance of sport · Changes in thinking · The end of “England’s summer” · The storm clouds of war	151

The twentieth century

Chapter 22	Britain at war The First World War · The rise of the Labour Party · The rights of women · Ireland · Disappointment and depression · The Second World War	159
Chapter 23	The age of uncertainty The new international order · The welfare state · Youthful Britain · A popular monarchy · The loss of empire · Britain, Europe and the United States · Northern Ireland · Scotland and Wales · The years of discontent · The new politics · Britain: past, present and future	168