

Oxford Introductions to Language Study

Series Editor H.G.Widdowson

Linguistics

H.G.Widdowson

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

| | |
|--|-----|
| Preface | IX |
| Author's preface | XII |
| SECTION I | |
| Survey | I |
| 1 The nature of language | |
| In the beginning ... | 3 |
| The design of language | 4 |
| Animal communication | 8 |
| Human language: endowment or accomplishment? | II |
| Language, mind, and social life | I3 |
| 2 The scope of linguistics | |
| Experience and explanation | I7 |
| Models and maps | I8 |
| Dimensions of idealization | 20 |
| Langue and parole | 2I |
| Competence and performance | 24 |
| Knowledge and ability | 27 |
| 3 Principles and levels of analysis | |
| Type and token | 29 |
| Principles of classification | 30 |
| Dimensions of analysis | 32 |
| Levels of analysis | 35 |

4 Areas of enquiry: focus on form

| | |
|--|----|
| The patterns of sound: phonetics and phonology | 41 |
| Sound segments | 42 |
| Syllables | 43 |
| Stress and intonation | 43 |
| The construction of words: morphology | 45 |
| Derivation and inflection | 46 |
| The combination of words: syntax | 48 |
| Grammatical systems | 49 |
| Constituent structure | 50 |

5 Areas of enquiry: focus on meaning

| | |
|--------------------------------|----|
| Meaning in language: semantics | 53 |
| The meaning of words | 53 |
| Semantic components | 55 |
| Sense relations | 57 |
| Words and phrases | 60 |
| Meaning in context: pragmatics | 61 |
| Reference, force, and effect | 62 |
| Context and schema | 63 |
| Negotiation of meaning | 65 |
| Relations between utterances | 66 |

6 Current issues

| | |
|------------------------------|----|
| The scope of linguistics | 69 |
| The data of linguistics | 72 |
| The relevance of linguistics | 75 |

SECTION 2

| | |
|-----------------|----|
| Readings | 79 |
|-----------------|----|

SECTION 3

| | |
|-------------------|-----|
| References | 115 |
|-------------------|-----|

SECTION 4

| | |
|-----------------|-----|
| Glossary | 125 |
|-----------------|-----|